

As President and founder of Albarella Media, Jackie Albarella brings a rich background of over 20 years experience in video, television, theater, photography and multi media to every project she undertakes.

The range of her experience includes development and production of cutting edge television programs and social documentaries; to being the founding Executive Director of the Charles Burchfield Nature & Art Center. Her video work includes “Mom Can We Go Home” - a documentary on homeless women and children aired on ABC TV, Buffalo, NY, and “Talking About Social Security” a documentary for the Pew Charitable Trusts, aired on WNED-TV Buffalo/Toronto. Albarella also produces television programs including a weekly, syndicated, gardening program entitled “Let’s Go Garden” which airs throughout the country .

She has received many awards including a New York State Broadcasters Award for television, national Telly Awards, Professional Communicators Award, and The National Garden Writers Association Production Awards for her television work and the communications pieces she creates for national corporations.

Albarella is the recipient of two Niagara Council on the Arts grants for her documentaries on The History of Olcott Beach, and restoring the carousel at Olcott Beach.

Ms. Albarella is an accomplished nature photographer. She has exhibited in numerous art festivals, as well as had one woman exhibits at the American Association of University Women in Rochester, NY, and a multi media, one woman exhibit at the Burchfield Penney Art Center, in Buffalo, NY, entitled “My Mr. Burchfield”.

As the founding Executive Director of the Charles E. Burchfield Nature & Art Center in West Seneca, NY, Albarella helped to create the organization, and many of the nature and art programs that continue today.

Albarella is a teaching artist with the Arts in Education organization, and also works with Western New York Schools through New York State artist in residence grants and programs.

More information can be found on her website at www.albarellamedia.com.